DUB GOLFERS WILL ORGANIZE FOR THEIR OWN PROTECTION

One of them discovers that he is sold from one good player to another; Is Used to Supply Them Regularly With Balls.

FROM the four corners of the nation letters from Class Q golfers are pouring in, bristling with enthusiasm over the proposed revolt from the thralldom of the present golf rules, says George Fitch in Colliers.

The eagerness of the writers is as intense as the stories they tell are pitiful. "I have been playing with three friends for several years a ball a hole," writes a New York golfer. "Recently they told me that I was to play henceforth with three other friends, because they wanted to take on a new man. In the course of a couple of months I learned that I had been sold by the first trio to the second for a sack of clubs and three months' dues. That shows the respect in which we dub golfers are held. We are little better than slaves."

"I want to join the dubs' revolt," writes a Philadelphia man. "At present I am conducting one by myself. I will not employ a caddy unless he consents to a fine of five cents for every time he lags."

"Four rules are admirable," says a member of the celebrated Onwentsia club of Lake Forest, "but they only go part way. I favor a rule which will allow a player to repeat a stroke in case he has forgotten to keep his eye on the ball. If golf is a game of memory, word and good. But if it is a game of skill, it should not be made to depend so much on the memory. When I can remember to keep my eye on the ball I am a slashing good golfer."

We had not intended to carry this idea further, but the demand seems overwhelming. It would be pure philanthropy to give a few general instructions in the perfection of a bad game of golf. There is, for instance,

Welsh Gets Thanks From the King Mack Would Make Son Musician

REDDIE WELSH is the cleverest press agent in the United States. This, at least, is the opinion of Los Angeles critics after Welsh had wired congratulations to King George V, at London, because of the enthusiasm which the royal personage manifested at a recent boxing show in London. Welsh, who never intends to go back to England, and sent the cable merely as a diversion was astonished when he received the following reply: "I am commanded by the King to thank you and those who associated themselves with you for the loyal message contained in your telegram."

Connie Mack, veteran manager of the Philadelphia Athletics, is making efforts to induce his son to give up playing baseball and study the violin abroad. That the baseball uniform will unfit him for a master musician-ship is the plea of the Philadelphia innkeeper to his son who is coaching the Raleigh University team. It is thought that this will not influence young Mack this year and he will continue coaching the team.

Ad Wolgast believes that public opinion will force Willie Ritchie into a return match. Wolgast, despite an injury to his hand, is ready and willing to meet the title holder. He believes that they will come together eventually, though not for some time. Milwaukee promoters are anxious to sign Wolgast and Mexican Joe Rivers for another tilt, and it is very likely that the next bill will be between the Dutchman and Californian.

Punch On Nose, Test of Gameness Nasal Smash Makes Fighter Faint

NEW YORK, March 22.—The truest test of gameness and courage is a terrific punch on the nose," remarks Dan Morgan, the New York impresario of prize fighters. "Nothing can so quickly take the fight out of a fellow as a smash on his sneezing apparatus."

"Hit a man under the jaw and it stuns him—but only for a moment. Hit him along the belt line and it takes the wind out of him, but he can come back in a minute or two. But send one smashing against a man's nose and he'll think the world has come to an end."

A straight arm slam on the sneezer will temporarily paralyze a man's face and seemingly his head. It will send the blood rushing away from his head and leave him faint. It will make the man think that every bone in his nose is broken and that not only his nose, but his entire face is swelling at the rate of an inch every two seconds.

Brown Can Take the Blow.

"There is only one man within my memory who can take a punch on the nose and not have it affect him. That man is Knockout Brown, whose ability in that line was the real means of his coming to the front in the ring, and winning for himself over $100,000 in five years."

A number of years ago when I had just started in the fight game and was looking around for a few fighters to take under my wing, I happened in a gymnasium where I saw a fellow named Brown working out. He was pitted against a fellow that outweighed him at least 20 pounds, yet the kid went rolling after the big chap as though the big fellow was a bantam.

Two Hard Punches.

"Just about the time I got there the big chap swung a terrific punch that landed on Brown's nose. In the next round he reached that nose again which by that time had swollen to nearly twice its size. When the second punch landed, an ordinary man would have quit right there. But not Brown. He just shook his head as though trying to shake away the pain, and kept after his opponent. Twice after that the big fellow reached Brown's nose, and each time he carried every inch of his weight in the punch. But Brown never winced. It was a wonderful exhibition of gameness."

"After the amazing match was over I sought out Brown."

"Didn't it hurt you when you were hit on the nose?" I asked.

"Brown looked at me in a sort of scornful way for a moment, and then in his strong German accent said: "Sure it hurt—hurt like das devil. But a feller vat fights he must get hurt and not say nothin'."

"Right then and there I figured I had found a man for my string of fighters and I signed up Brown."

Developed the Punch.

"Brown was pretty much of a novice when I first got him. He had no defence. That was one of the reasons why so many fellows were able to land on his nose. The first thing I did was to build up his defence. Then I developed his already terrific punch, got some old time fighters to show him a few of the fine points of the game and then I turned him loose."

"In less than five years of fighting Brown cleaned up something like $140,000 for both of us. Early in his career he was a whiffling. He could stand any amount of hammering, and always come back for more. Fighters knowing what a punch on the nose does, landed a few on the beak of K.

THREE BAKER AND HOME

Louis Marty aided materially in the victory of the Lamar team over the Postal men Sunday. He was the only horse to beat out a three banger and home run with the bases filled. The game was won by the score of 14 to 12.

A number of pretty plays were pulled off by members of both teams. Good hitting by both sides featured the contest.

Batteries—Lamar, Lawton, Croon and Marty; Postal, Leach and Pippo.

CENTRAIS DEFEAT SOLDIERS.

The Centrais a Mexican baseball team defeated a soldier team Sunday through the superior twirling of their pitcher, Chuma, who fanned 11 men. The score was 3 to 4. The batteries were: Soldiers—Harkins and Martin; Wants; Centrais, Chuma and Ramon.

PURITY TEAM WINS IN 10 INNINGS

The Purity baseball team won its second victory Sunday at Washington park, when it defeated the Times team by the score of 7 to 6. It required 10 innings to determine the winner. The Purity team, clearly placed hitting in the last stanza won for the Purity club. The game was complete with excellent plays. Excellent records were made by members of both teams.

Hammonds of the Purity, and Leyva, of the Times, twirled a superior brand of ball, although poor support was accorded Leyva at critical stages.

Batteries: Purity, Hammonds and Grant; Times, Leyva and Willie Umphries-Gotch, H. Gunkel and C. Woolen.
